A PHOTOCOPIED INTRODUCTION TO OUR NARRATOR, PRESENTED WITH ONLY MILD TREMOR

STATE OF NEBRASKA

ROBERT KERREY • GOVERNOR • GINA C. DUNNING • DIRECTOR

December 13, 1984

Mr. and Mrs.
Jackson
Omaha, NE

Dear Mr. and Mrs.

We need to know if you are interested in our considering Robert for specialized medical care. If so, we must receive your financial application for the Nebraska Department of Social Services, Services for Crippled Children Program. Please call 554-5895 and make an appointment with Katie Adams to complete this application.

If you are financially eligible, we may authorize a diagnostic neurological evaluation with one of our pediatric neurologists, for possible neuro muscular disease.

If you are interested in our Program, please complete your application soon. If I do not hear from you by January 15, 1985, we will assume you wish to provide Robert's medical care on a private patient basis.

This decision in no way affects your son's Educationally Related Therapy Services Program. The Therapy Program is a school responsibility and is provided at no cost to you.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call or write me. We are glad to be of service to you.

Sincerely,

Phyllis

1. Student's name: Robert Dates: 84
84

2. Birthdate: 1983

3. Age (at time of assessment): 1 yr., 3 mos.

4. Diagnosis: Heart murmur, very traumatic birth

5. Current program: None

6. Major concerns of parent: Considerably developmentally delayed. Not crawling, minimal rolling. Unable to attain sitting, though can maintain sitting. Speech/language delay.

7. Bracing and adaptive equipment: None

8. General observations: This is an alert, pleasant appearing 15-month old, somewhat fearful of evaluator (age appropriate). Generally placid, but mother states he seems to be becoming more frustrated. Will sit and play for awhile. Occasional hand flapping noted.

9. Functional Motor Skills:

A. Gross Motor -

1. Body pulled from supine - substantial hand lag until 45°

2. Rolling - started at 4 months. At 7 months, he quit rolling.

3. Prone - dislikes this position, appears stuck. Mother states he does ~~not~~ pivot prone in both directions.

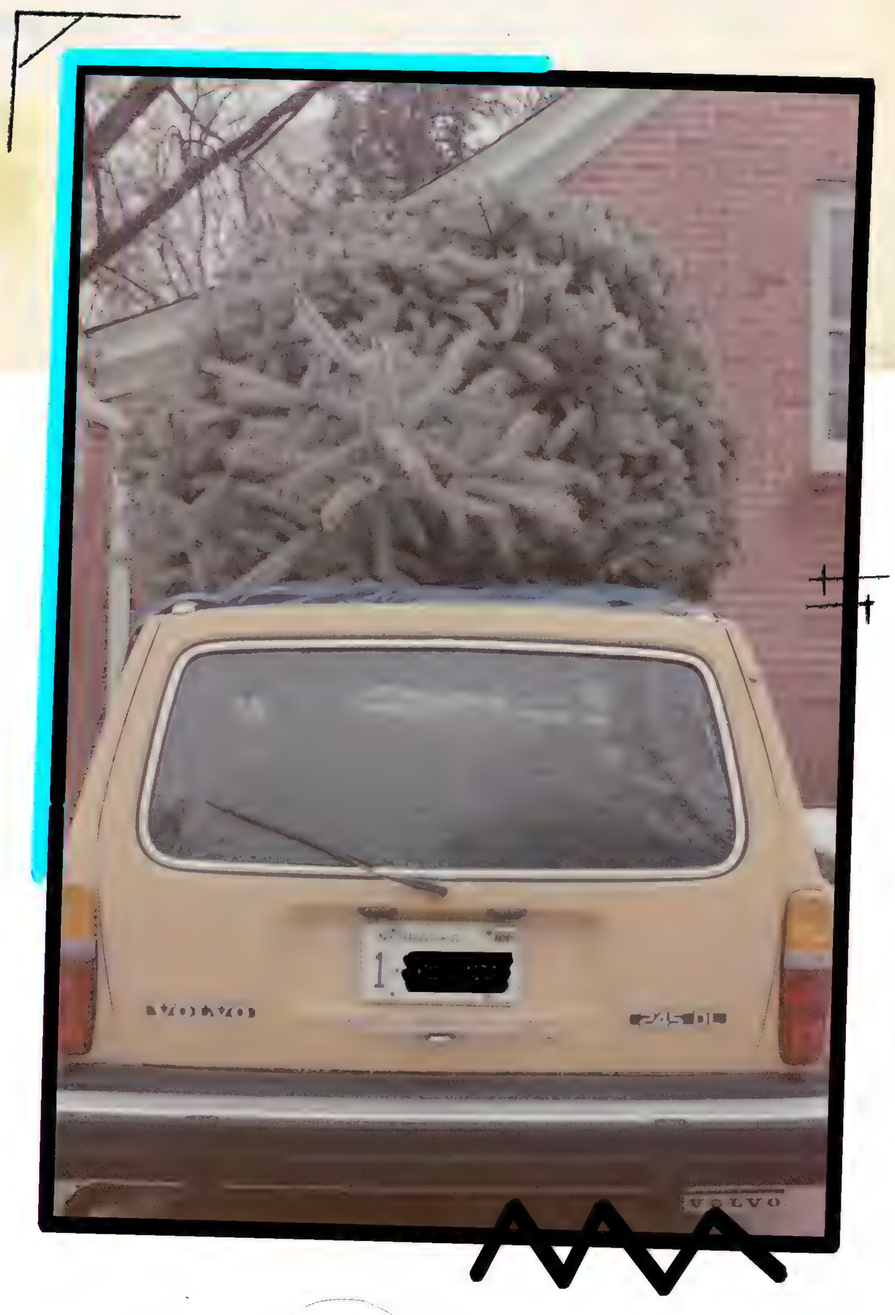

4. Sitting - 6-7 months sat well, maintains well once placed. Can pull self forward with feet.

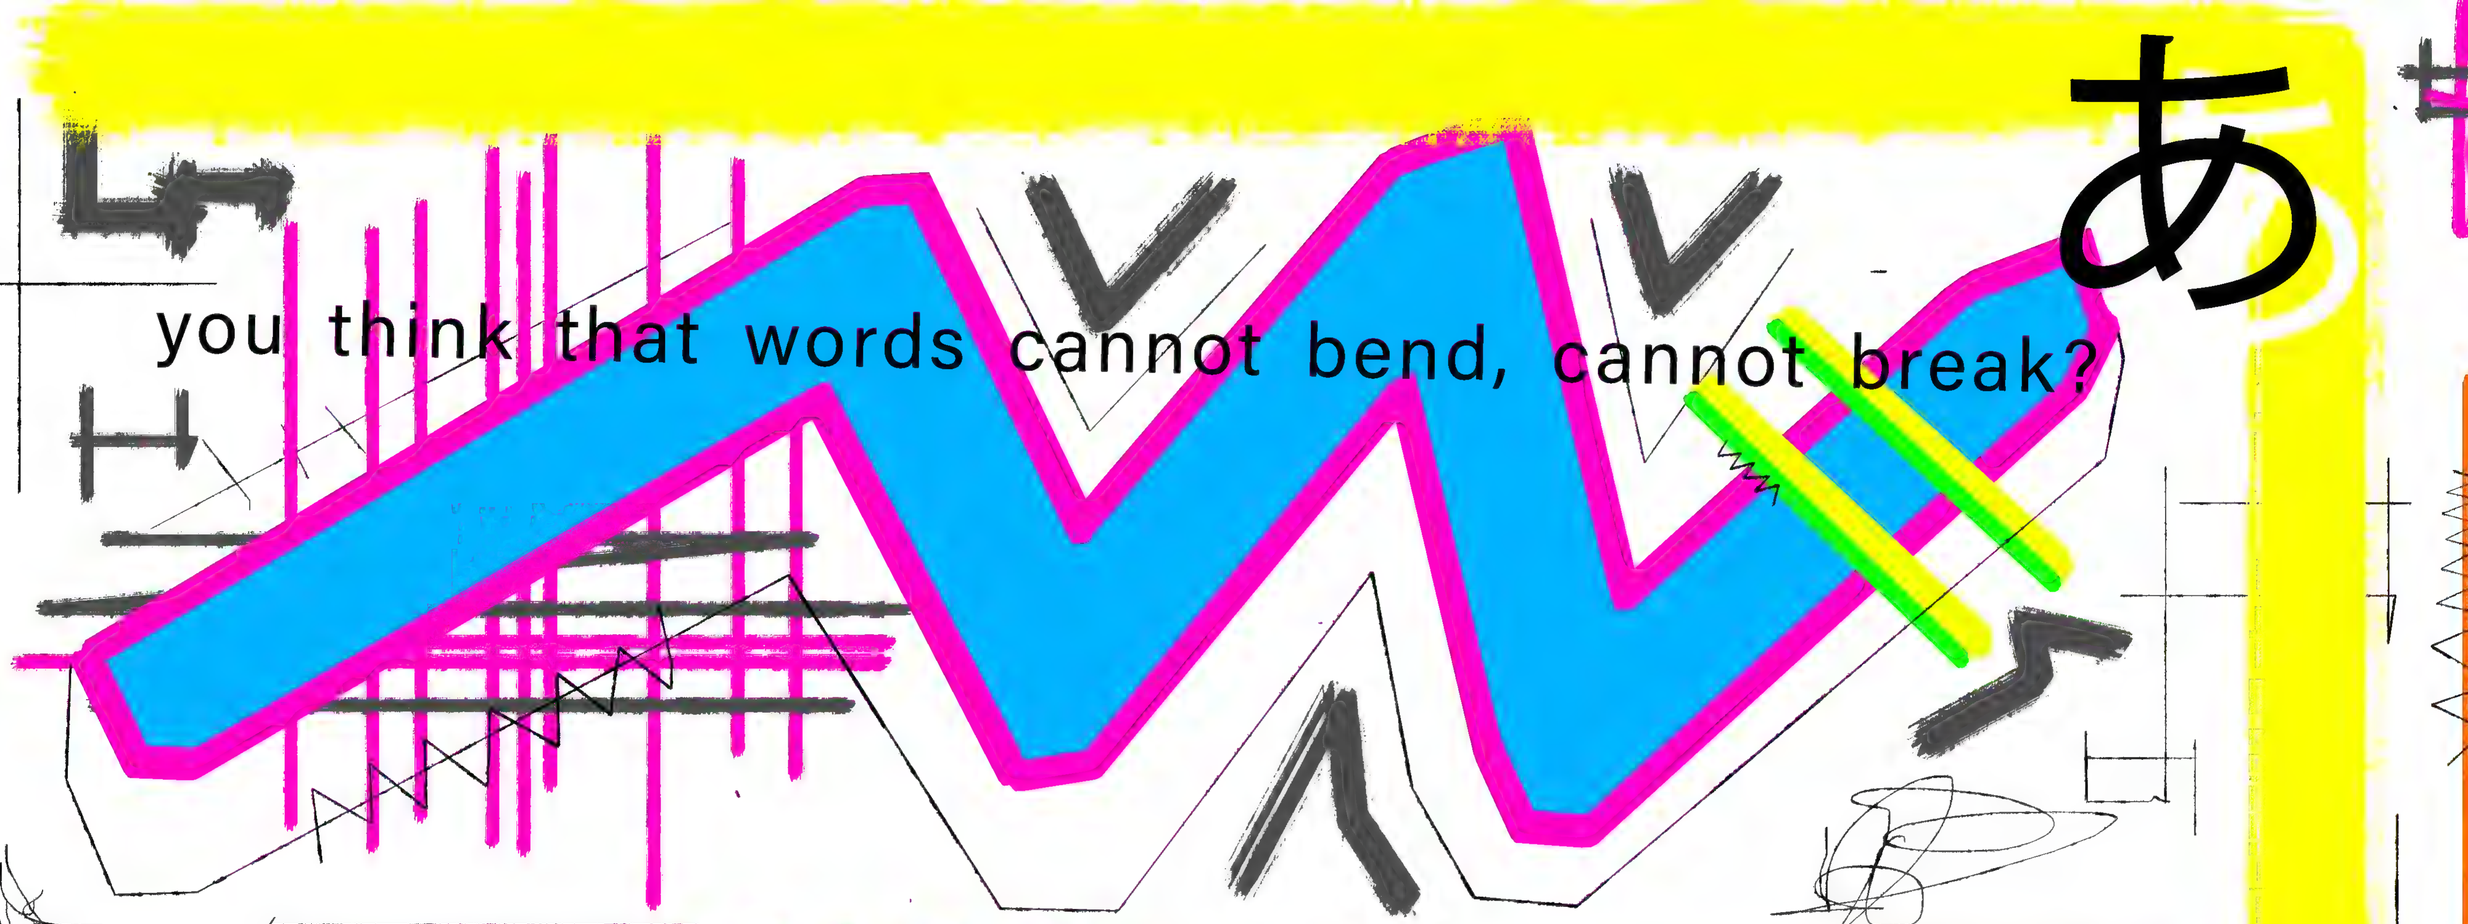

5. Four-point - prone propping on hands, good weight shift in both directions.

6. Supported standing - at times will bear some weight, but generally astasia.

7. Will attempt to pull self up to furniture from sitting, with legs crossed using mainly UES.

B. Fine Motor and Self Help:

Not formally assessed, but seems to be more at age level.

10. Neuromotor:

A. Responses:

Equilibrium - in sitting and supported vertical - somewhat delayed to the L, more so delayed to the R.

Protective - present to the R in UES, did not respond to the L. Forward protection - delayed. Backward - not present.

B. Reflexes:

Moro- somewhat present
Foot grasp
STNR

11. Tone:

LES - hypotonic with trunk and UES - somewhat hypertonic. Mother stated UES and LES quite stiff for first 6 months.

12. Functional Strength:

Gross Sensory:

Visual, auditory, tactile - appear intact though not formally tested.

13. Posture/ROM :

1. Head and neck - WNL

2. UES - WNL

3. LES - hypermobility noted in hips, knees and ankles.

4. Posture appears within normal limits.

Major problems identified:

1. Developmentally delayed - functioning 3-7 month level at gross motor levels.

2. Tone differences throughout.

3. Speech/language delayed.

Recommendations:

1. Begin active PT program immediately to develop home program for parents in conjunction with an active PT program.

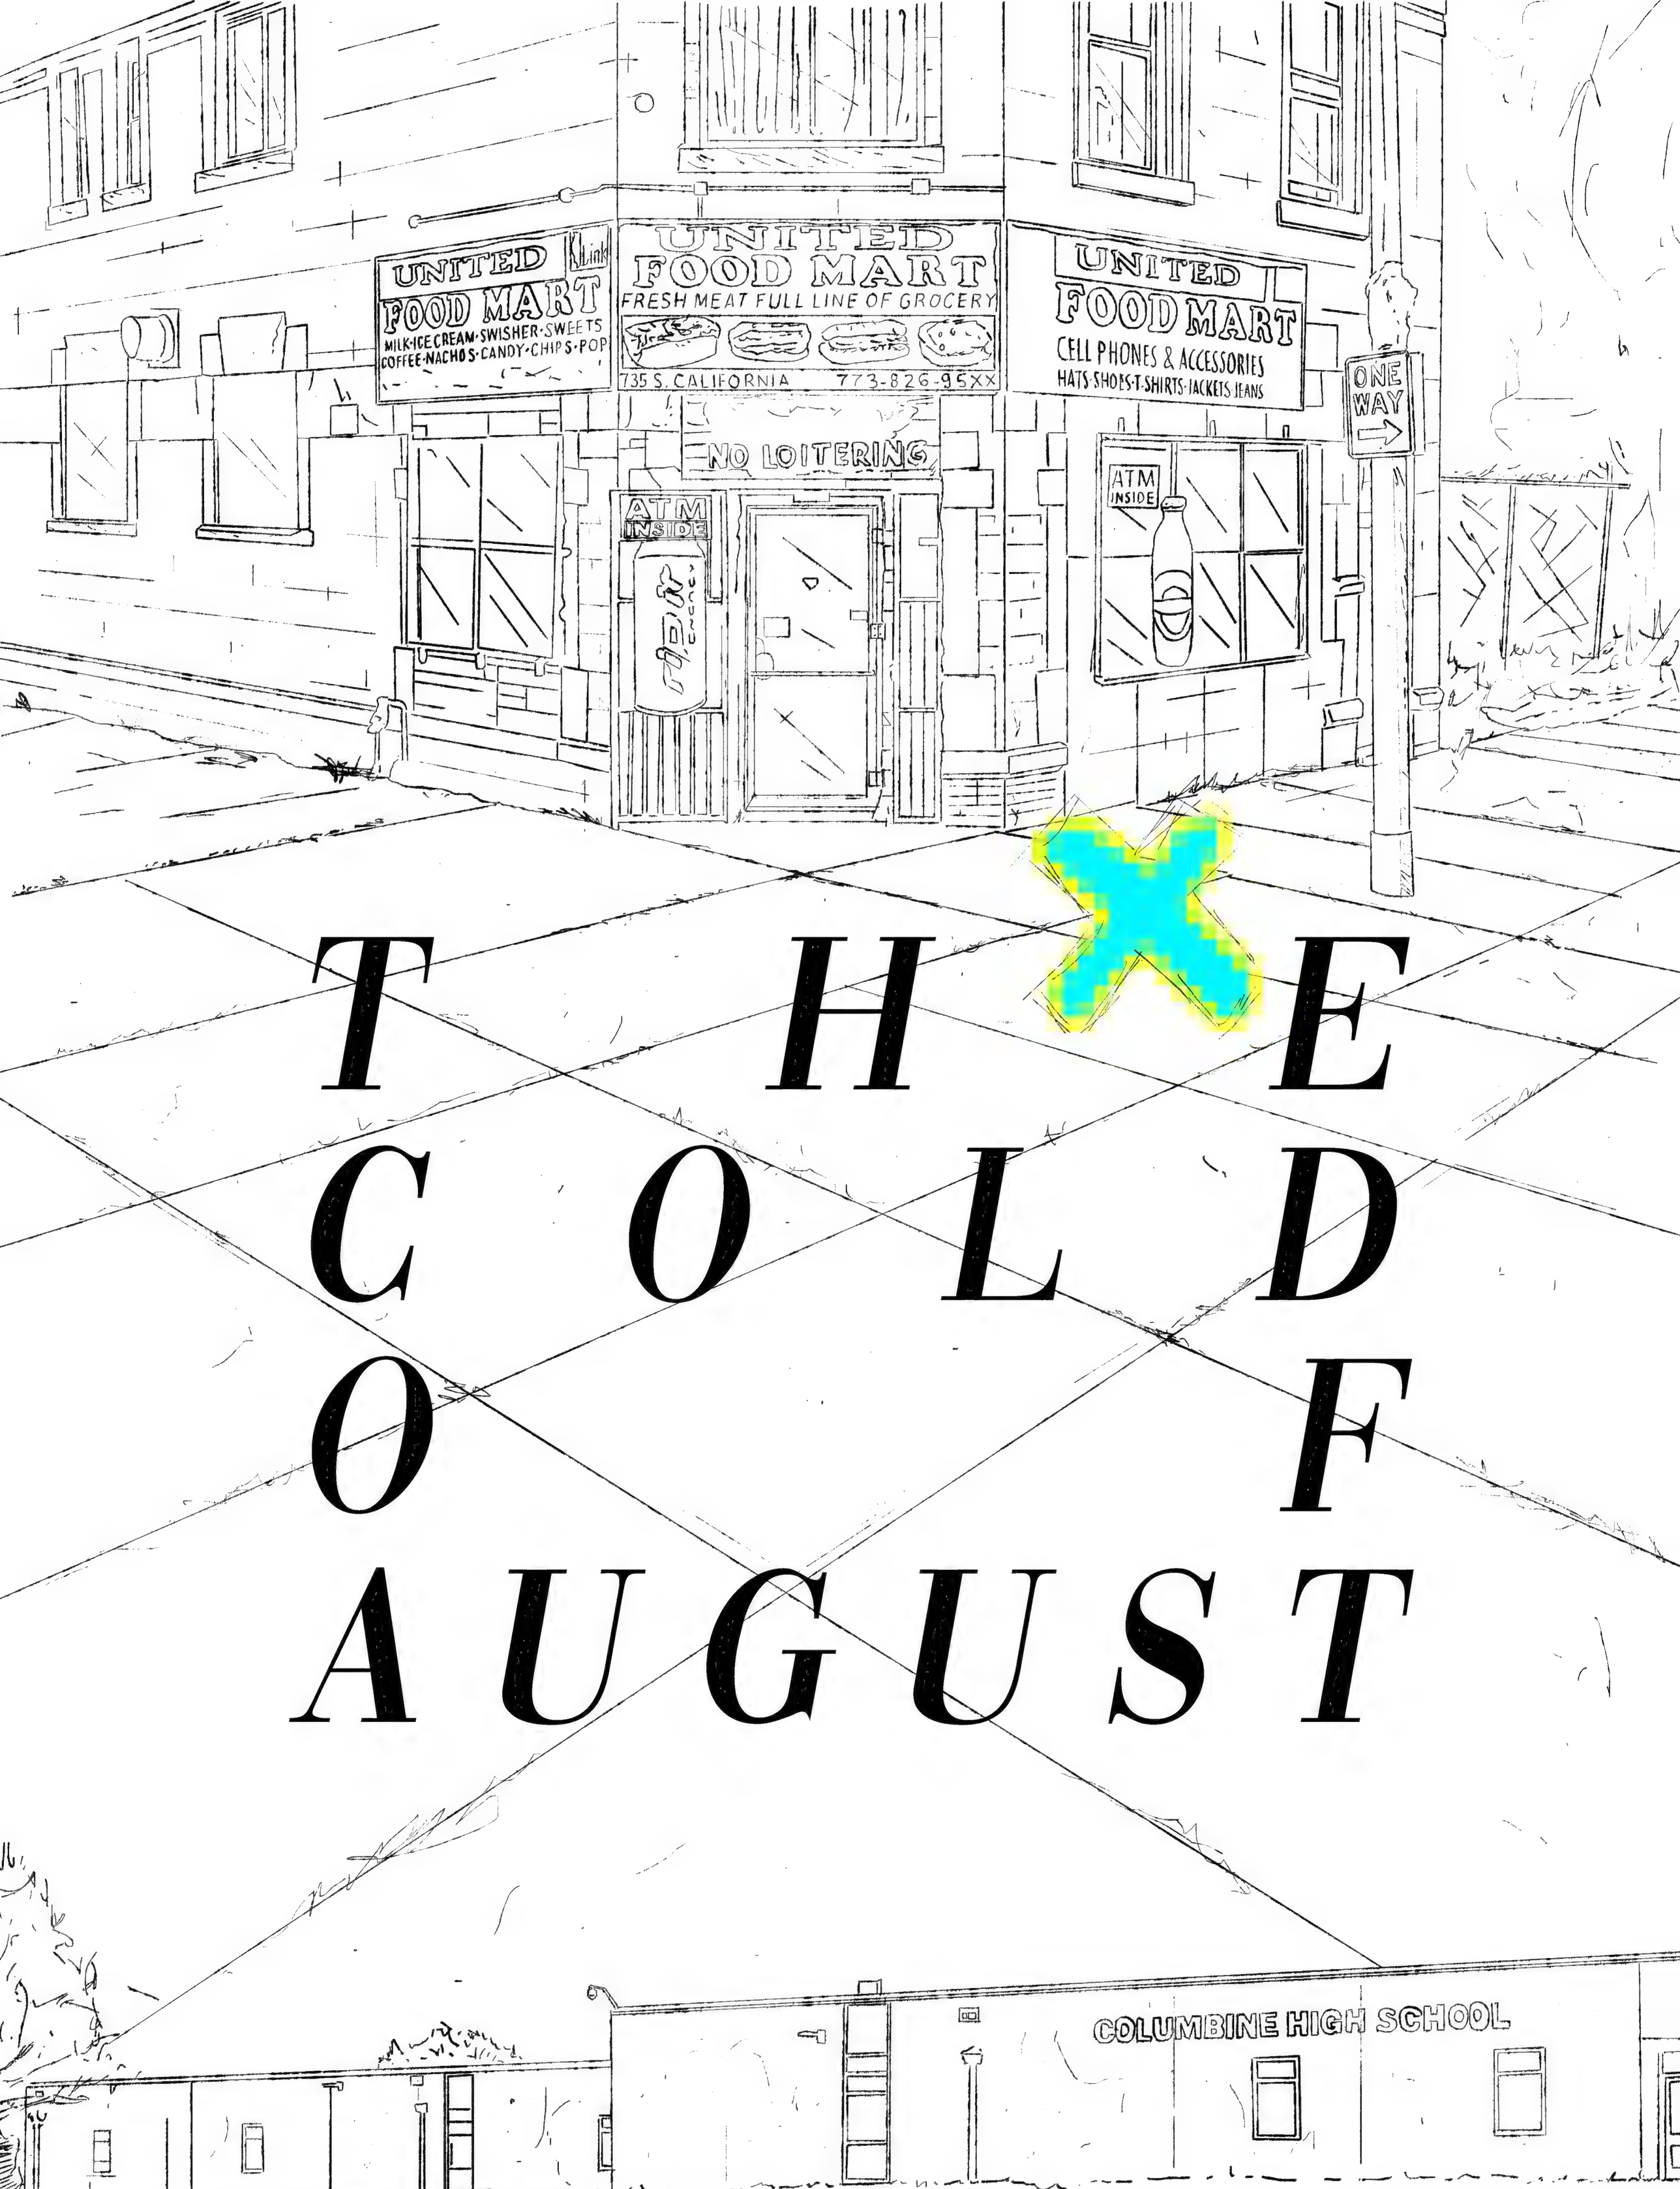

2. Frequency - initially 1-2x/wk. As program progresses and family becomes more comfortable with program - decrease frequency as needed. This frequency may vary with child's progress.

3. Robert needs a full work-up in all areas to determine the extent of his needs. PT, OT, Speech/Language, Psych, Neurological, Orthopedic, etc. as soon as possible.

the quiet ground

I am walking the quiet ground now, where the cold and wet contempt weave gracious in the weeds.
I cannot read these stones about,
their carvings frayed and moss-covered, but this one, I feel, is for a Frenchman who drowned beneath a melting trench while thinking on his mother's breast.

This stone here's a slavemaster's hurried abortion, wrapped gently and buried in some shallow trash.

That scarred pillar marks the naked dance of the red-faced man, suiciding sweetly in the firelight.

And this shell of cracked granite's for the virgin soldier - and his newly splintered face - staring down a fissured dawn, freed from God's good grace.

I do not know how they all went
- there are too many stones to fathom - but I feel that it were a naked glory to the last.
And when their screams slumbered out and joined the void, they found their rest here, kept still by the rhythms of muffled footsteps on grass and the slow shepherd waning of the cricket's shrill.
Gone the guns.
Gone the noise.
Gone it all away.
Gone the crying over tiny graves for people you hoped to know one day.
Let the silent genocide play out and spindle through the years.
No need to wonder anymore whose stone-throw incited civil war.
That it was fought - and will be fought -

We are the things thrust on the lip of wave.
The sons and daughters of sediment shaken loose, dispersed dilute in the maelstrom's motherclutch until the Culture flops in broth and settles slow, waiting to be raised once more.

I'm sorry, traveller.
Tell me of your kingdom on that curved tumult.
Show me the cathedrals you've raised on the twists and I will point you the rubble of tomorrow's promise.

But do forgive your befores for mistaking it in their stupid perseverance
- the ghosts of MANIFEST DESTINY!!! still ragged on them, a brutal inheritance - forgive them for calling it a turn.

Twenty-one long leaps from the tomb with Golgotha yet underfoot.
The wave is at zenith!
Its riders seeing for the first not the azure endlessspace,
that rushroaded limitless,
but instead pallid shockmasks invert,
the rabblement's mirrored droning, familiar families all! Then - fall fall fall

Come, sit near this crystalline fire.
List the distant shatter.
The splintered tides of beryl glass cracklin' quiet.

How I wish that teeth were not the only authors worth reading.

Or that my father, pointing to his lightless mime, was right in pleading -
"We may outrun it if we only try!"

Say, have you learned the impossible wisdom that waits at the end of every knife?
Or that stone-philosophies SHATTER when tapped gently with steel?
Were you more familiar, you'd understand why we've never loosed our manic handles grip after forging
- a branch's rough clutch over rapids - and why, even when blinded by the welcomezeal of messiahs-come-lately, the palmless hand will always hide a razor.

One, by representation in his ledger, which, with its insistence on empirical data, renders Holden an extension of enlightenment reasoning (albeit without the usual hopeful outlook on humanity). Holden harbors nothing but contempt for those who see the world's processes as beyond their understanding. He esteems, instead, the rigorous scientific methodology...

The episode of the Bible is crucial in the overall allegorical pattern in Blood Meridian. At this point, the kid becomes the impersonation, or better, the subverted or mirror-image of Mary Rowlandson during her captivity among the Indians in the New England wilderness. This intertextual link sheds a very illuminating light...

This process is upheld and sustained by fetish identity patterns and hierarchies that not only produce angry, repressed, and guilty individuals and communities, but also establish violence as an acceptable everyday discourse of interaction within American society...

On a symbolic level, the undying judge could be seen as emblem of destiny, evil as a prevailing first cause after which all is inevitable. The kid, who never reveals his name, could be seen as emblem of coming of age, of growth into manhood and wisdom. The character, on which ethical themes converge, has meaning only in so far as he can be assumed to have agency...

By abolishing this false order, he simultaneously dissociates his treatment of the subject from this illusory order and reveals the presence of a phenomenal reality that is "before or beyond" anthropocentric assumptions in which war is the constant and unalterable cosmic reality and optical democracy is the fundamental ontological status...

Through the characters of both Judge Holden and the boy's father, McCarthy seems to embody the concept of 'logocentrism,' a term used by Jacques Derrida to formulate his criticism of idealism. What connects both the judge's and the man's visions to a logocentric pattern is not necessarily their philosophical stand, which cannot be identified as explicitly idealist, but rather their attitude towards language as a means to gain control over existence by understanding it and fixing its meaning through words...

THE WORD

AND LO!
CASSANDRA TOOK THE PULPIT

and lo! cassan

And lo! Cassandra took the pulpit.

What use is a word if there are none to hear it spoken?

A crowd before her, silent, shuffling, eating.

Gabriel appeared to me and I did tremble to list his song:

"the annunciation dead-tongued
the rainbow revoked.
the saltwater sugar,
the wine to cherry malt.
the purple-haired messiah mumbles,
her saccharine tongue a nodding trance.
the new lepers pacifier-mouthed, coffled in electric chairs and humming in line to dialysis.
saint george will slay himself on stream.
the buddha will play coachella in the afternoon,
the crowd a litter of pallid men,
bow-necked and chittering as they thumb screens,
one last hit of dopaminefuck from nirvana®.
he did not return a carpenter.
he's worn a thousand masks,
- each more decrepit - and none have rolled his stones away.
take a selfie 'neath the cross, you apes.
golgotha is underfoot!
the lord's mercy was in drowning first.
no ark can steer the coming burn."

the angel ended with a Joycean scream that rattled sharp for days, and now I am here.
Thus I was told and thus have I seen.

"Trite!" someone barks between wet chews. "Derivative!" screams another.
"Unnecessary neologisms with an overreliance on scattered mythic imagery."
Mild cheering spreads, peters. Belching. "You seek only glory for yourself!"
Some nod, some grunt confidently, many resume eating.

Hark! There are a million ways to speak indifference,
I do not add another.
How little it matters whose name has the most remembered rhymes.
I want instead the stench hardest to boilwash away,
the geist whose belligerent cling makes a shadow still.

Faint clapping followed by occasional scratching and more chewing.

Look! Linger!

Nothing. They begin to turn away.

Shudder me with that old pain, those sharp rebukes!
Pay those that leave no mind,
it only scares them that I can see their ghosts before they've left!

Confused glances followed by silence and further shuffling. Someone stumbles over a box and stops.

They only had it half right, brothers!
In the beginning was the word,
but it was not "God."
It was not God.
It was not god!

Sees.

Wait, don't op-

(the MADNESS!!! recedes after some centuries)

You.

You who's weathered the dissipation.
They have all left but you.

Where are you, anyway? And when?
And what thorns did you scrape on your way to me?

No matter.
Here, take this Bacchus box and set it in the public square.
Then tell the others they have the horse inside them.

These are all QUESTIONS, questions with LITTLE or NOTHING to do with the debut collection,

SCHIZOPHRENIC NIGHTMARE and OTHER LURID FLAVORS

written and illustrated by acclaimed radio documentarian,
THE CHAMPAGNE'S ELECTRIC. Acclaimed by who, you mutter?
Well, that, that's actually a bit rude. People, that's who. People on the internet.
Which people, specifically? It's not like I know their names offhand, but there was much acclaiming, let me tell you. I remember them being very impressed. And wait, why exactly do I need to prove myself to you? You're literally reading the back cover of an ebook. Like a dork.
Why does an ebook even have a back cover? Maybe it shouldn't,
I don't know. But I'm awake at 3 a.m. during a nationwide quarantine and needed something to occupy my mania so here we are, you and me, two hyper-intelligent chimps with nothing better to do but interact over vast chasms of time using language.
Shit's weird. Also, put some pants on.
